

YOUR PERSONAL DIET PLAN

Filipino-influenced | SIBO-friendly | Sustainable Forever

AT A GLANCE

Goal	66 kg → 55 kg (lose ~11 kg in 5–7 months)
Calories	~1,500–1,700 kcal/day — gentle deficit, not starvation
Approach	Low-FODMAP leaning (not strict) to manage SIBO & bloating
Activity	2 dog walks/day — light-moderate. It adds up!
Philosophy	Eat well 80% of the time. Enjoy life 20% of the time.

UNDERSTANDING YOUR SIBO & BLOATING

SIBO means bacteria in your small intestine ferment certain carbs before you can absorb them — causing gas and bloating. Diet manages symptoms. You don't need to eliminate everything, just be smart about it.

Reduce (not eliminate):

- Raw garlic & raw onion — use garlic-infused oil instead (totally safe for SIBO)
- Large amounts of beans/legumes
- Excess fructose: large portions of mango, apple, or honey
- Carbonated drinks
- Eating too fast or portions that are too large

What helps:

- Smaller, more frequent meals
- Chew slowly — seriously, it makes a difference
- Ginger tea and peppermint tea (have these daily)
- Bone broth
- Cooked vegetables over raw — easier to digest
- Digestive enzymes before meals (OTC — very helpful)

YOUR DAILY EATING STRUCTURE

BREAKFAST After morning walk — 7 to 9 AM

Eating after your walk means your body is primed to use nutrients well.

- Filipino: Sinangag (garlic-infused oil, 1/2 cup rice) + 2 eggs + sliced tomatoes
- Quick: Greek yogurt (plain, full-fat) + 1/2 cup berries + drizzle of maple syrup + 2 tbsp chia seeds
- Western: 2 eggs + sourdough toast (1 slice) + 1/3 avocado

Morning drink: warm lemon water first, then 1–2 cups coffee or tea (not on empty stomach)

MID-MORNING SNACK ~10:30–11 AM — only if hungry

- Small banana (slightly underripe = lower fructose, better for SIBO)
- 10–12 walnuts or macadamia nuts
- 2 rice cakes + 1 tbsp peanut butter

LUNCH — Your Biggest Meal

12 to 1 PM

1/2 plate	Cooked vegetables (not raw — cooked is easier on SIBO)
1/4 plate	Lean protein (fish, chicken, eggs, shrimp)
1/4 plate	Rice or starch (1/2 cup cooked rice max)

Best Filipino lunches:

- Sinigang (pork or shrimp) + 1/2 cup rice — excellent SIBO choice
- Tinolang manok (ginger broth, sayote, malunggay) + 1/2 cup rice — one of the best
- Grilled fish (bangus, tilapia, salmon) + pinakbet (light bagoong) + rice
- Arroz caldo (smaller portion, extra ginger — anti-bloating)

US-adapted lunches:

- Grilled chicken + roasted zucchini/bell peppers/carrots + 1/2 cup jasmine rice
- Salmon + steamed bok choy + rice or quinoa
- Turkey lettuce wraps with cucumber, carrots, a little soy sauce

Dark chocolate (70%+)	2–3 squares — satisfying, antioxidant-rich
Rice cake + Nutella	1 tbsp Nutella — better than impulsive snacking
Mango	1/2 ripe mango — Filipino non-negotiable, fine in moderation
Biko / kakanin	Small square occasionally — yes, life is too short!
Cocoa smoothie	Lactose-free milk + frozen banana + cocoa + cinnamon = dessert vibes
Protein + PB	Rice cakes + peanut butter + a few chocolate chips

DINNER After evening walk — 6:30 to 8 PM

After your walk, your body doesn't need a heavy meal. Keep dinner lighter than lunch.

- Tinolang manok — light, ginger = anti-bloat
- Steamed fish + sauteed kangkong (with garlic-infused oil)
- Egg dishes — tortang talong, scrambled eggs with cooked tomato and onion
- Congee / lugaw — comforting, easy to digest, great for SIBO
- Grilled shrimp + cooked spinach + small rice portion
- Chicken soup (Filipino or Western style)

Skip or limit at dinner: heavy fried foods, large rice portions, eating after 9 PM

EVENING 8 to 9 PM — if you need something

- Peppermint tea or ginger tea (amazing for bloating — do this nightly)
- A few crackers with peanut butter
- Small handful of nuts
- Chamomile tea to wind down

FILIPINO FOODS: KEEP vs. LIMIT vs. OCCASIONAL

KEEP — Eat Freely	LIMIT — Smaller Portions	OCCASIONAL — Special Days
Sinigang (all versions) Tinola Grilled fish/seafood Lugaw/congee Kangkong, sitaw, ampalaya Eggs (any style) Pinakbet (light oil) Munggo soup	Adobo (okay sometimes) Kare-kare (heavy coconut) Bicol express Pork dishes generally White rice (1/2 cup is fine) Coconut milk dishes Processed tocino/longganisa	Lechon Crispy pata Sisig Leche flan (small slice) Ube ice cream Halo-halo

HYDRATION

Water	2–2.5 liters/day. Bring a bottle on walks.
Ginger tea	1–2 cups/day — helps SIBO and bloating significantly
Peppermint tea	Great after meals — reduces gas and discomfort
Limit	Soda (diet or regular), fruit juices, sweetened drinks

KITCHEN STOCK LIST

Pantry	Proteins	Produce

WEEKLY TREAT STRATEGY & WEIGHT LOSS TIMELINE

Weekly Treat Strategy

Pick 1–2 meals per week where you eat whatever you want.

Filipino family gatherings, date nights, restaurants — enjoy fully.

No guilt. No 'starting over Monday.'

Follow the plan ~80% of the rest of the week.

This is what makes it sustainable forever.

Weight Loss Timeline

Week 1–2	Less bloating, more energy, 1–2 kg water weight loss
Month 1	~2–3 kg down, clothes fitting better
Month 2–3	~4–6 kg down, routine feels natural
Month 4–6	~8–11 kg down, at or near goal weight
After goal	Increase to maintenance calories, keep same habits

DAILY CHECKLIST — Post This on Your Fridge!

[]	Drink water before coffee in the morning
[]	Eat breakfast after your morning walk
[]	Cook vegetables — don't rely on raw salads
[]	Plan your afternoon sweet treat ahead (not impulsive)
[]	Drink ginger or peppermint tea in the evening
[]	Have dinner before 8 PM ideally
[]	Don't skip meals — that triggers overeating later
[]	Chew slowly at every meal

A NOTE ON SIBO TREATMENT

Diet manages SIBO symptoms — it does not cure SIBO. If your bloating is severe or persistent, consider:

- See a gastroenterologist and ask for a hydrogen breath test (confirms SIBO diagnosis)
- A short course of rifaximin — antibiotic specific to SIBO, very effective with few side effects
- Digestive enzymes before meals — over the counter, helps a lot
- Probiotics — be careful: some make SIBO worse. Lactobacillus and soil-based strains tend to be better tolerated

You don't need to be perfect. You need to be consistent. Filipino food is incredibly well-suited for weight loss and gut health when prepared simply. Lean on your roots.
